Kaya's Story :60, :30 & :15

Kaya weighed just one pound, one ounce at birth and endured a grueling 163 days in the hospital.

Thanks to research funded by the March of Dimes, Kaya survived premature birth, the #1 killer of babies in the United States.

The birth of a child is supposed to be a joyful event. Yet, each year, about 380,000 babies, like Kaya, are born too soon and many have serious health problems that can last a lifetime. But you can change that.

Join 3 million friends, families and colleagues in more than 500 communities across the nation in March for Babies.

The money we raise is so important in fighting premature birth and other life-threatening challenges that newborns face. We're supporting research and programs that help more moms have full-term pregnancies and healthier babies.

Sign up, join a team, and start fundraising today at marchforbabies.org.

Together, we can fight premature birth and help more babies be born healthy.

Milestones & Miracles :60, :30 & :15

For too many parents, a baby's first steps aren't just a milestone...They're a miracle.

A miracle made possible by volunteers like you who walk in March for Babies.

Sign up today to take the steps that help make milestones - and even miracles - possible.

Who will you march for?

March for Babies 2016

The March of Dimes has been responsible for numerous breakthroughs in health and continues to fund lifesaving research, vaccines, education and programs. We bring the same determination to our fight against premature birth, the #1 killer of babies. March for Babies, which takes place in more than 500 communities across the country, helps fund this vital work.

New this year is "Kaya's Story," which features a little girl who was born 4 months early and is now a healthy 4-year-old thanks in part to the work of the March of Dimes. Back by popular demand is the Milestones & Miracles campaign as well as TV and radio spots featuring volunteer ambassadors Hilary Duff and Thalia. Please support us by encouraging your audience to join the thousands of people who participate in March for Babies in your community.

Thank you for helping us improve babies' health. We appreciate your support.
